

Who is Hilmar Cheese Company?

In 1984, twelve Central California dairy families, owning Jersey cows, created Hilmar Cheese Company. These pioneering farmers were looking to maximize the value of their Jersey cows' high-solids milk and decided to produce their own cheese. They invested heavily in research, the latest technology and staff excellence – a practice that continues to guide the privately held company today. Committed to continuous improvement and innovation, the Hilmar, California, location is now the world's largest single-site producer of American-style cheese and whey products.

Hilmar Cheese Company and its ingredient subsidiary, Hilmar Ingredients, are recognized internationally for superior quality, consistency and unparalleled, personalized service. Yet, while helping its customers feed consumers all over the world, Hilmar Cheese Company remains dedicated to its core principles of environmental stewardship, employee development and educational outreach.

Success, at Hilmar Cheese Company, is the outcome of fostering long-term, mutually beneficial relationships between our owners, fellow employees, milk producers, customers and the local community.
